JH Stevedoring's Commitment to Safety

As part of JH Stevedoring's (JHS) ongoing commitment to keeping safety in the workplace a number one priority, the executives and managers of JHS, Penn Warehousing & Distribution (PWD), Horizon Stevedoring Inc. (HSI), Murphy Marine Services (MMS) and Creative Leasing (CL) participated in a safety training course hosted by Signal Mutual Indemnity Association.

This safety training course consisted of management's role in safety, supervisor safety leadership, incident investigation, safety inspections, effective presentation & communication skills, job safety analysis, corrective action plans, and best practices.

The leadership believes that safety is a core value that helps drive the culture of the organization. All employees must be involved. That is why safety is included in the overall day-to-day processes. An effective Safety Management System must have leadership at all levels of the company.

Pier 80's Facelift Continues

As reported in our September 2011 Edition, JH's Waterside Improvements to the Pier Sub-structure and Fenders were completed in November 2011.

As part of the Philadelphia Regional Port Authority's (PRPA) continual practice of updating our facility, the PRPA secured grant monies from the federal government. These monies enabled the PRPA to replace the perimeter security fence along Columbus Blvd. The project consisted of replacing the existing fencing with a heavy industrial fence with a smaller gauge and new barbed wire, all making it much more difficult for a person to climb as well as cut.

Holiday Luncheon

On Tuesday, December 20 2011, Jim Lyons, President of J.H. Stevedoring, and the office staff attended the Annual Employee Holiday Luncheon hosted by PENN Warehousing & Distribution.

The luncheon was a two hour event that allowed the staff to take a break from their busy work schedule and relax with co-workers and friends. The event was catered by CFM PHILA LLC, Innovative Catering Concepts.

Best wishes for a happy, healthy and prosperous New Year!

2012!
